How Do You Convince People to Eat Less Meat?

A recent fracas in Spain shows that simply telling people to reduce meat consumption in the name of climate and person health won't work.

ILLUSTRATION BY MELANIE LAMBRICK

In early July, Spain's minister of consumer affairs, Alberto Garzón, posted a short video on Twitter urging Spaniards to decrease their meat consumption. From a political communication perspective, it was flawless. He listed the many ways large-scale meat production and consumption harm humans, the environment, and animals, all backed by peer-reviewed science. He focused on reducing meat intake, not eliminating it—he praised nonindustrial livestock systems and family barbecues. He acknowledged that changing diets is hard for those without access to cheap, accessible, and diverse food choices. He explained that the government would launch food education campaigns and implement regulations to incentivize more sustainable diets. He even added a hashtag: #MenosCarneMasVida (Less Meat More Life).

如何说服人们少吃肉?

班牙最近的争吵表明,只单纯告诉人们少吃肉是为了保护气 和个人的健康根本是不够。

1年7月,西班牙消费者事务部长 Alberto Garzon在twitter上发了一段小视频,敦促西班、减少肉类的消费。从政治的看法来说,这理论是完美无瑕的。他列出了大规模肉类生口消费对人类、环境和动物的多种危害,所有这些都得到了同行评议科学的支持。他生于减少肉类摄入量,而不是消除它——他赞扬了非工业畜牧系统和家庭烧烤。同样,2承认改变个人的习惯是特别不容易的事情,特别是对于那些无法获得廉价、易获得和羊化食物选择的人来说。关于这件事,西班牙消费者事务部长解释道,政府会发起视频育活动,还会提列一些规律,让人们吃得更好。他甚至加了"少肉多生活"的标签

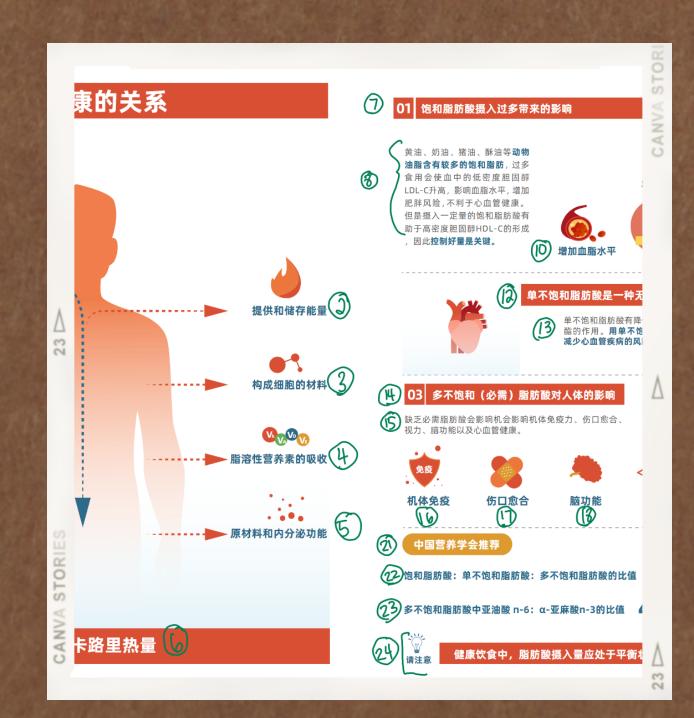

压牙政治爆发了。虽然加尔松的微妙和深入研究信息得到一些支持(想减少肉类消费的 或来越多),但是一些同僚们诉诸留下侮辱性的言论。比如,西班牙的社会党的总理佩 罗桑切斯在新闻发布会上夸张的表达他对牛排的爱,和右翼民众党的特奥多罗加西亚埃 亚发了一张烤肉的图片的推文跟「祝你的健康!」的说明文字。
